A. C. VANDIVER PROPRIETOR.

KEYTESVILLE, - MISSOURI.

The Holden Enterprise and Galatin Democrat have expressed a strong desire to see such a man as Judge John F. Phillips in the U. S. senate. More than likely the Missouri giant, George G. Vest, will not have an easy walk over the track next time, if such men as Judge Phillips should be pitted against him.

Judging from the expression of many of the papers north and south, one would conclude that John Sherman has completely burst his presidential boom, ere it was generally known that he was trimming his sails that way. The Columbus Times says "Blaine killed himself as a presidential possibility with his pen. Senator Sherman is doing it with his mouth."

GREEN B. SHERMAN, of Chillicothe, editor of the Daily Constitution, on coming out of his office at 3 o'clock last Tuesday morning, was attacked by a couple of prowling bull dogs. He commenced drawing his pistol to defend himself, and in so doing accidentally discharged the pistol, the ball entering the right leg, inflicting serious injuries. Moral: Editors ought not to carry pistols.

A BIRMINGHAM (Conn.) electrician has a new rat trap which, it is said, works admirably. He attaches a piece of meat to one pole of a dynamo machine, which can only be reached by the rat standing on a plate, which serves as the other pole. Report says that no rat has yet got the meat, but many have reached for it, and the inventor is rewarded for his ingenuity with a large collection of dead rats.—Chicago Times.

WHILE Geo. Sunderland, a poultry dealer, was loading chickens at Galatin last week, he laid off his coat and vest in the pockets of which were $175. A sneak thief, named Larkin, took in the situation and made off with the booty. He was arrested and all the money found on his person, except $20, with which he had bought some clothing and other articles. He was sent to jail and will no doubt go to the penitentiary as soon as the scales of justice can be balanced for him.

DR. B. G. DYAR, A. E. and D. C. Gore, J. A. Smith and F. M. Moss, performed last Tuesday an operation on Burgess Elwood, a lad ten years old, making an incision of eight inches in the abdomen, taking the bowels out and removing an abscess containing a quart of matter, washed his bowels with two gallons of hot water, replaced the bowels, and the boy will get well, it is believed. The abscess prevented any action of the bowels.—Paris Mercury.

LATER:—The boy died.

DR. McKNALLY, the veteran editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate says that one of the great questions now before the people of the Western and Northwestern states is, "will the native people of this country Americanize the foreign born population, or will the foreign born un-Americanize the natives?" In view of the attempt made by late foreign importations in the last few years, especially in our large cities, to abolish the Christian Sabbath, to establish communism, and to create anarchy, we think the question a very appropriate one, and one that could not be acted upon any too soon. It is high time that the good people of this country, both native and foreign born, were giving those that come to us from other shores to understand that they must be obedient to our laws or their room will be far preferable to their company.

The police board of St. Louis, made an order that all the saloons be closed on Sunday, June 26th, in accordance with the law of the Thirty-fourth general assembly, repealing the anti-Sunday law of 1857, and which was expected to go into effect on that day. One Schneider, a saloonist, who not having the fear of the law before his eyes, kept his saloon open on that day, and as usual sold wine and beer. He was arrested and tried for violation of the Sunday law. Last week his trial came up before Judge Noonan, who decided that Schneider was not guilty, and that the anti-Sunday law of 1857 was still in force in that city. Because of this decision many good people of St. Louis and elsewhere are indignant. We are no lawyer and will not enter upon a legal argument as to the correctness or incorrectness of the decision, but will say that it does seem strange that our legislature should have made two attempts to repeal that law of 1857, so repugnant to Christian civilization, and have so signally failed in each instance. When Sabbath breaking and immorality generally get a strong hold upon a community, including a hold upon the judges of our courts, it is a hard matter to get an unbiased hearing upon questions calculated to circumscribe vice and promote virtue. Some have gone so far as to say there is no appeal from Judge Noonan's decision. If so there is no other chance but to await the meeting of another legislature to act in the premises. In the meantime we have no doubt the Sunday observing sentiment will so increase that it may be possible to change public sentiment so that it will be unpopular for public men to wink at the wicked deeds of wicked men, as seems to be the case now in many instances.

We did not go to Brunswick or Salisbury, but that did not make us feel less patriotic.

James Worsham broke his bugie coming from Brunswick. It is not necessary to explain the cause. He already knows.

The latest thing out is a young man buying out the right of another, with a pint of whisky, the privilege of going home from church with his best girl.

Burt Worsham was thrown from his horse on the 9th inst., and by lighting on his head and shoulders was hurt very badly, but is getting all right again.

Some half dozen "smart alecks" tried to beat their way on the train from Brunswick, on the evening of the Fourth, but the conductor offset their little game by setting them off at Dalton and they had to "hoof it" home. Good.

We heard of another young man who went to spend the day with some girls, and it is said he was anxious to find out how he stood. We presume he found out, as one of the girls told us he sat and read the Almanac all day.

The Fourth of July, the great independence day, the day we love to celebrate, because it always reminds us of the distinguished patriots who perilled their lives and fortunes, battling in defence of this, our great land and country. Although it had been stormy and bad weather for the past few days, the sun rose beautiful and bright on this morning, with a cool southwest wind blowing gently which made everything seemingly to put on a look of gladness, even the little birds appeared to rejoice in celebrating the beauty and brightness of this glorious old Fourth.

Zar

Let me paint you a picture:

You have no assurance that your children will not die drunkards while there are bloody streams of ruin issuing from our street corners and from all our towns. Business men, I appeal to your interest. You will increase your business and collect many bad debts if you crush out the rum king. I have not told you half the story of this murderous evil.

If I were a painter I would dip my brush in blood and on canvas I would paint: "Health gone, hopes blasted, prayers slayers." I would paint the home of a widowed mother, living in the desert of sorrow where every grain of sand is a blistering woe, and with children tender and innocent, clamoring for a morsel of food at her hands when she has none to give them. I would paint a thousand homes, utterly destitute of fatherly love or sisterly devotion or motherly affection. I would picture all the crimes in this black catalogue of blood, even down to the recent murder of Gambrell and I would let you stand aghast over graves that can never be covered or erased from the memory of their loved ones. See the devoted mother and fond father standing by the grave that will be open in their memory forever trembling as the aspen leaf while she mutters: "My God, is this my end!" Paint a landscape, if you will, whose trees bear poison and whose shadow is death; let the mountain streams and torrents of this landscape be liquor fire: let these streams form an ocean whose fathomless water and limitless surface shall be fire; and people the scene with immortal men, whose lips are scorched with blasphemy. People it with women whose cheeks are drenched with scalding tears, wrenched from broken hearts, and with adults whose faces never wear a smile; and then to exhibit this scene, open the gates of perdition, and let the glare of infernal fires shine on it, and then in this picture you may fairly see the end of this legalized curse.—Selected.

A Good Thing Recommended by Good People.

An article which receives the endorsement of the most prominent people wherever it is tried must have some merit, and do what is claimed for it. Jackson's Common Sense Liniment is an article of that character. It has been on the market for the past five years and has never failed to do all that is claimed for it by the manufacturers. As an evidence of the popularity of this remedy we have only to point the reader to the testimonials recently appearing in our columns. It is recommended by such well known stock men as Geo. L. Wasson, David Whitmer, Geo. Schweich, Capt. Lon Duval, Maj. T. J. Williams and many others whose names we have not space to give. One of our best known lumber dealers, Mr. G. T. Limerick, gives it his unqualified endorsement, as it cured him only a week or two ago of a lame hip.

Others have used it for various aches and pains, and all unite in saying that it does what is claimed for it—no more, no less. Mr. T. H. Jackson, the manufacturer of this wonderful liniment, can be seen at the Wasson House the remainder of this week. But if you want to buy a bottle of his medicine after he is gone you can get it of your druggist.—Richmond Democrat.

A BIG RECOMMENDATION.

The "Common Sense Liniment." Ahead.

Everyone who is interested in horse flesh should not fail to visit T. H. Jackson's headquarters, south side of the square. The sale of Mr. Jackson's remedies is immense. Some five years ago he was here and introduced the Common Sense remedies and since that time they have been staple articles. In speaking with the well known druggists, Ellis & Prather, they said:

"We have never handled a liniment that gave such satisfaction as the Common Sense Liniment does. We sell more of the Common Sense Liniment than all other liniments combined."

This is indeed high praise, when we remember Ellis & Prather are large dealers and keep scores of the standard liniments and shows what a hold the Common Sense Liniment has on the public. No one should fail to see and hear Mr. Jackson while here.—Maryville Republican.

WHAT HOME FOLKS THINK OF IT.

An Interview With Prominent Citizens.

Knowing that Messrs. Smith & Patton, the well known druggists, have been selling T. H. Jackson's Liniment for several years the editor of the Democrat called on them Monday. In answer to an inquiry, Mr. Patton said:

"Yes, we have been selling T. H. Jackson's Liniment for about five years, and would not have kept it during this time if there had been no demand for it. All that we know is that it out-sells any other horse Liniment we handle, and that the purchaser gets more liniment in a bottle than is put up by any other proprietors of this class of goods. Here (showing us a bottle) you see is a full pint for $1. We also have the same in 50c bottles. Those who have bought it come back for more. This seems to be a good recommendation. Perhaps you can get a better idea of the value of the Liniment from time to time."

On the road to the Whitmer stable we met Mr. Wasson and asked what he thought of T. H. Jackson's Liniment. He replied:

"You can say for me that it has proved to be most excellent liniment, and that if it does not do all that is claimed for it nothing else will." Mr. Wasson is one of the oldest horsemen in Ray county, and buys and sells several hundred head of horses and mules annually.

Reaching the Whitmer stable we asked George Schweich, "what do you think or know about T. H. Jackson's Liniment?" "Well," said Mr. Schweich, "I think well enough of it that I am, as you see, preparing to write Mr. Jackson an honest testimonial. As that will tell all I know about it." We waited and took the following copy, which speaks for itself:

RICHMOND, Mo., April 12, '87. T. H. JACKSON & CO., Quincy, Ill.

We have been using your Common Sense Liniment for the last three years in our stables and find it to be all that you claim for it in your advertisements. Truly yours,

WHITMER LIVERY CO.

We heard of a number of others who have used this liniment, but did not have time to interview the parties. The Liniment is evidently rightly named—"Common Sense Liniment"—and everywhere it is introduced it springs into popularity.—Richmond Democrat.

T. H. JACKSON, the Common Sense Liniment man has been holding forth at William Mann's store, east of the square, since Tuesday. He has a bone-yard full of horses' bones, taken from sound and diseased animals and showing the peculiarities and effects of many diseases. He discourses eloquently on the construction of the horse and the various diseases to which he is subject, and deals comprehensively and with common sense in his modes of treatment. Every horseman in the country should see and hear Mr. Jackson, as there is much to be learned concerning horses.

The Trenton Republican says that Jackson's Common Sense Liniment is for sale in every drug store in Grundy county, and nearly every farmer keeps it constantly on hand ready for necessity. Mitchell and Smith, the two best horse judges in Trenton, say there is no doubt but Jackson's remedies are the best in the market.

All is not gold that glitters, but Dr. Jackson's Common Sense remedies for horse disease will save gold to those who apply them.—Gallatin North Missourian.

Another Endorsement.

T. H. JACKSON & CO., Quincy, Ill.

I have tried the Common Sense Liniment in a case of sprained knee-joint with a lady and I am honest in confessing that in a practice of twenty-five years I have never tried anything that gave the immediate relief that this liniment has done. I have also used the liniment on my horse, and know of it being used on many more, and with entire satisfaction. I consider it a good liniment.

A. L. GRANT, M. D.

CARROLLTON, Mo., May 22, '87.

MAYSVILLE, Mo., April 22, 1887.

MR. T. H. JACKSON:

DEAR SIR:—About one year ago I purchased of a druggist in Mayville, a bottle of your Common Sense Liniment, to use as a remedy for sore throat. My son has also used it for partial deafness, and it has proved to be good in both cases. My son can hear far better than when he commenced to use it. We keep a supply in the house all the time, use it for all purposes, where a liniment is used, and find it to be the best we have used in 25 years. I also keep it in my stable, and find it especially useful there. The liniment gives entire satisfaction.

Yours very respectfully,

B. M. CLAYTON.

From one of our Responsible Farmers Who Knows what He is Talking About.

T. H. JACKSON & CO., Quincy, Ill.

DEAR SIR:—I have used Common Sense Liniment on my mare for lameness and founder and find it as good as recommended. I have tried it one week and my mare is nearly well, she was foundered and stiff in the shoulders. I would advise everybody who have stiff horses to use it. It is good. Respectfully,

JACKSON TIMMONS.

High Praise.

Our townsman, James B. Prather, is recognized as one of the best posted horsemen in Missouri. He owns some of the finest thoroughbreds in the country, and has thousands of dollars invested in horse flesh. No greater recommendation could be given Dr. Jackson's Common Sense Liniment than to say that Mr. Prather heartily recommends it, and that the firm of Ellis & Prather sells more of the Common Sense Liniment than all other liniments combined.—Maryville (Mo.) Democrat.

Catarrah in Horses.

Horse owners may remember two attacks of diseases which troubled our horses during the past few years known as epistaxis and often fatal. Its main symptom was a violent catarrhal discharge from the nose, present in every case. The disease four or five years ago, though going by the same name, was so different, milder in form, as to lead to the impression that it was altogether a disease. In its attack the catarrhal discharge was much less frequent. When it did occur, complete recovery followed, and when it did not, while the horse seemed slowly to regain his former vigor, he was injured by a permanent thickening of the lining membrane of the air passage of the head and throat, and in the throat extending to the surrounding tissues, making the air tubes so small that he could not easily get breath enough, especially when unusual work called for an extra supply of air. Farther, this condition seems to be hereditary, so that colts bred from stock so affected are more effectually impeded breathing than others.

By some persons this condition has been mistaken for heaves, quite another disease. The labored breathing is the same in both cases, but the cases are different; in one case a sort of asthma, in the other a chronic nasal catarrh without outward discharge. In this case the thickening may be felt back of the angle of the jaws and between the jaws. The swollen condition may be readily recognized by feeling the outer part of the throat as compared with a sound one.

This condition may be cured by raising the horse's head and pouring a tablespoonful of JACKSON'S COMMON SENSE LINIMENT into each nostril and letting it run down the throat, then let the head down and pour some on top of ears so as to let it run down to the angles of the jaws and bathe them freely. Repeat this daily. It will produce a discharge such as should have taken place when the horse was first attacked with the disease, with no unpleasant symptoms at time of use afterwards. Feed with Common Sense Renovating Powders to thoroughly cleanse the system. The result will be the removal of the thickening by direct discharge through the pores of the skin which are stimulated to healthy action. The above disease can be cured, the natural breathing restored and the disease eradicated from the system by the use of by following the directions for epistaxis, coughs, colds and distemper. If you have a horse afflicted, don't fail to try it.

For Worms in Horses, Mules and Colts.

There are several different kinds of worms found in the intestines of the horse. Of these, the principal are the long round worm, found in the small intestines, and the needle worm, found in the large intestines. Other varieties are sometimes found in the stomach and bowels, but it is not necessary to describe them.

The long round worm is from six to ten inches long, and resembles the common earth worm, or the same worm found in the human. It inhabits the small intestines. Very large numbers of them may exist in the horse's bowels, and by their drain on the food of the horse, and the obstruction they cause to the natural action of the intestines, cause him to lose condition, and though he may eat quite enough, not to be benefited by it.

The needle-worms occupy the large bowels, sometimes in incredible numbers. They are darker colored than the long round-worms. They are from three-quarters of an inch to three inches in length. They are slim and sharp pointed. Great numbers of them often descend into the rectum, or last out, and become very troublesome to the horse.

The tape-worm is very seldom met with in the horse. It could only be certainly known by parts of it being found in the dung.

Symptoms.—Worms may exist in the horse's bowels in considerable quantity, without causing great disturbance of his health. The symptoms of worms are not always very satisfactory. When they are troubling him much, the coat will become unthrifty, the hide tight and belly tucked up, and the appetite greedy. Cough may sometimes be caused by worms.

But these symptoms may indicate other diseases, and of course, a careful examination for any other disease that gives rise to the same symptoms should be made; and if none can be found, worms may be suspected, and remedies for their removal given.

A horse troubled with needle-worms will show signs of uneasiness, frequently rubbing his tail against objects, or tucking it under and switching.

Cures.—Some suppose worms to be natural, and even beneficial, in the bowels; but this is a mistake. An unhealthy condition of the mucous coat of the bowels is most likely the cause of worms. (Under the head of worms I do not say anything of bots for they are not proper worms.)

T. H. Jackson's Common Sense Renovating powders is a positive worm destroyer, removing the worm without any disagreeable effect, and leaving the bowels in a healthy condition, and giving health and tone to the animal's system. There is no danger in using it.

LINIMENT

A Common-Sense Remedy for Every Family.

It is cooling and soothing, does not burn, or stain the skin, and requires no rubbing. It is a harmless, speedy and easy cure for the diseases specified.

SPECIAL DIRECTIONS FOR USE.

Muscular Rheumatism. This disease is caused by hurts or injuries, causing inflammation in the muscles, stopping the active circulation of the blood, and causing great pain. For all cases of this kind, apply the COMMON-SENSE LINIMENT above and around the parts affected, which will relax the muscles, removing the pressure from the blood vessels, which will give instant relief. Continue the application for a reasonable time, and a cure will be effected.

Sciatic Rheumatism. Sciatica is caused by injuries to the limb, in different ways. Sometimes the knee, ankle or foot, is injured, which will relax the cords, inflame the hip joint, and inaction of the same, frequently causing severe pain, making it difficult, or impossible, to bring the leg forward; the pain often extending to the foot.

Treatment.—Bathe the spinal column, the hip and muscles, and cords of the leg and foot, with the LINIMENT, which will relax the cords, inflame the joints, create a healthy circulation of the blood, and strengthen the parts affected. Continue to use the LINIMENT a reasonable length of time, and a cure will be effected.

Neuralgia or Nervous Headache. Bathe the forehead, temples and back of the ears with the LINIMENT. Also pour some of the LINIMENT in the palm of the hand and sniff up the nostrils. It is pleasant, cooling to the fevered parts, and will give immediate relief, and may be used with perfect safety.

LAME BACK. Bathe the back, spinal column and muscles of the thighs with the LINIMENT, which will strengthen the muscles, lubricate the joints of the spinal column, giving relief with a few applications, and a sure cure will be effected by a few days' continuous use.

Stiff Joints and Contracted Cords. Bathe the length of the muscles of the limb affected, with the LINIMENT, and wrap it with flannel, which will relax the cords. Rub the joint with LINIMENT, and wrap it with flannel, which will relax the cords and give action to the joints and afford relief. If continued a line proportionate to the time the limb has been diseased, all cases where ossification has not taken place a cure will certainly follow.

Sore Throat and Neck. Apply the LINIMENT thoroughly to the parts affected and swallow a few drops for a short time, and relief will be effected.

Chilblains, Frost Bitten and Tender Feet. Bathe the foot thoroughly with the LINIMENT twice a day, which will in a short time make a permanent cure.

CORNS AND BUNIONS. For Corns.—Thoroughly saturate the Corn with the LINIMENT, night and morning, for a few days, so the callus will be softened, and the sensitive of the joint removed, then the Corn can be easily removed with a knife.

For Bunions and Blisters.—Make a thorough application of the LINIMENT, for a few days, to the parts affected, which will remove the inflammation and soreness.

SPRAINS AND BRUISES. Apply the LINIMENT thoroughly to the parts two or three times a day, and relief will be effected.

All cuts, bruises, sores, bites of poisonous animals, hurts or injuries, requiring an external application, will be promptly benefited by the use of
